,aromatherapy,essential oils,patchouli,alternative medicine,health,naturalWhat are Bach Flower Essences?Pioneered by Dr. Edward Bach in the 1930's, a flower essence is a liquid preparation imprinted with the etheric pattern of a particular flower. Like a homeopathic remedy, the liquid - usually spring water with a little brandy added for preservation - contains little or no detectable chemical substance of the flower from which it was made. Instead, the liquid maintains the vibrational pattern of the flower. Well, what does this mean, exactly?To understand flower essences (also called 'flower remedies'), you can imagine that all things are made up of vibrating energies - modern physics and eastern mystics both confirm this - that there are no finite particles, but instead repeating, dynamic energy patterns. Material objects are made up of huge amounts of energy really, as Einstein had shown with $E=mc^2$, where the amount of energy (E) is equal to the mass (m) of an object times the speed of light (c - a very big number) squared. Now picture a beautiful red rose - bright, colorful, vibrant - the Rose has a particular energetic pattern, one that is repeated in every other red Rose (though not exactly, but very close). There are energy frequencies that are particular to the red Rose that are different from all other flowers. The vibrations that make up a Rose are faster than many other flowers (Rose is considered a very high-vibration flower), and these vibrations are woven together in a particular way. Now imagine any other flower - a Geranium for example - it's vibrational patterns are different from the red Rose - slightly slower perhaps, and woven together in a different way. It is these vibrational patterns of each flower that give them their particular characteristics - color, shape, smell, texture, and the like.Now, somewhat like a sound from one source can make a material across the room vibrate with sound energy (as your eardrum may vibrate from the plucking of a guitar), flowers can cause water to vibrate with a different sort of energy. It's not so much a sound, or even light (though this is closer), but 'etheric' energy - the very essence of the flower has a vibration that is imprinted upon the water in which it is placed. The water, being made up of vibrational energy itself, retains some of the vibration of the flower that was soaked in it. This etheric imprint is stored in the water, and can actually be transferred from the water at a later time to other objects (or beings) also made of vibrational energy.So, what does all this mean to us?! Well, Dr. Edward Bach held the notion that the source illness or disease was emotional in nature. And when one ponders what emotions really are, one can conclude that each emotion is a particular energetic state of being. All emotions seem to have a particular energy - love, despair, anger, fear, appreciation - one can consider each of these a different energetic pattern. Dr. Bach considered negative energetic states, negative emotions, to be the source of disease in the body, a theory supported by much of the world's healers. Dr. Bach also thought that these energetic states can be transformed, and that one of the transformational methods he discovered was the use of the vibrational patterns of flowers - it was then that Flower Essence Therapy was born. Through years of research and study, Dr. Bach developed a system of therapy using the vibrational patterns of flowers, imprinted into spring water, to transform the emotional vibrational patterns of human beings. He showed through numerous case studies that flower essences, properly selected and applied, can be effective in treating the negative energies which underlie most disease states. Further, one need not have an illness or disease to realize the benefits of flower essences - flowers can be used to assist in transformation of any negative emotional state, be it temporary and transitive, or a more ingrained long-term pattern. (Flower essences do not transform positive states into negative ones, as flowers are not thought to contain negative energies themselves).

Dr. Bach's 12-7-19 Categorization Method

Dr. Bach categorized the original 38 flower essences he discovered into 3 categories to assist in their application. The categories are the '12 Healers' which reflect and transform our essential nature, the '7 Helpers' to assist with chronic conditions, and the 'Second 19' that relate to more immediate traumas or difficulties. Here we will consider the Twelve Healers and describe the properties of each essence. The Seven Helpers and the Second Nineteen will be considered in Parts II and III of this article. The Twelve Healers were designated by Dr. Bach as the flower essences that help the individual transform the source of discord at the very core of their being. These twelve essences are meant to address the twelve archetypal groups of humanity; the twelve primary personalities as Dr. Bach saw them. Some have gone so far as to relate these to the twelve signs of the Zodiac (a reasonable relationship it seems), though it is unclear as to whether this relationship was drawn by Dr. Bach himself. These twelve essences are an excellent starting point for any journey into flower essence healing, as it is often times our root 'disharmony' or karmic imbalance that is the source of much or perhaps all 'dis-ease' in our lives.

The Twelve Healers:

Impatiens - As the name of the flower implies, this essence addresses a tendency toward impatience; these individuals have difficulty with the flow of time. Their minds are often far ahead of the present moment, and with this they will deny themselves full immersion in the beauty around them. The individual needing Impatiens may be truly lonely, always being ahead of those subtle human exchanges which bring the richness to our collective human experience. Many find Impatiens to be a relatively 'fast acting' flower essence, feeling more at ease within minutes of essence use.

Gentian - Those in need of Gentian flower essence are too easily discouraged when setbacks occur. They may live with an omnipresent feeling that things are not going well, and may doubt the possibility of their own healing. Gentian can bring about a more positive outlook - perhaps with the feeling that one is 'good enough'. When things do not go exactly as planned, instead of being overwhelmed and disheartened, one can see the lessons in the circumstance, perhaps rebounding with more wisdom and strength than before.

Mimulus - This essence is the core remedy for known fears in everyday life. Those needing this essence can be hypersensitive to common events which will elicit an out-of-proportion fear response. The fear may be found in the physical body centered in the solar plexus, which may churn with anxiety. Mimulus flower essence helps bring courage to these individuals, bringing the strength of the higher Self to the personality so that they may find joy and exuberance in their lives.

Clematis - The Clematis flower essence type is a dreamy one; there is insufficient interest in the immediate moment of daily life. The individual may have a strong inner life - the abilities to dream, visualize and imagine are well developed, but the manifestation into the physical world is not strong. Clematis can help bring a warmth to the bodily incarnation, such that the individual can channel their great gifts into the here and now. Agrimony - The Agrimony flower essence type tends to hide more deeply rooted pain or ailments behind a cheerful facade, both inwardly and outwardly. They may make light of their own suffering, or try to ignore it all together, when really there are patterns and feelings which need to be addressed for personal growth and healing. These individuals may have been raised in strict environments, which may not have allowed the expression of such troubles. Agrimony flower essence can help them find inner peace, by allowing the connection to true inner conditions, acceptance of these conditions, and subsequent transformation.

Chicory - Filled with self-pity, and the 'nobody appreciates me' attitude, the Chicory flower essence type squanders their light by demanding it from others. A guise of seemingly loving behavior can be used to manipulate others into feeding somewhat selfish needs. The Chicory essence is considered important for clearing loving energy pathways so they may be directed outward and given freely. May be particularly helpful with children who have a pattern of negative behavior for demanding attention.

Vervain - The lesson of Vervain flower essence is one of balance. The individual in need of Vervain may be extreme, over-bearing, and very strong - perhaps inflexible - in their ways. Though their energies are high, the single-minded efforts of the Vervain type can result in stress, when given situations where flexibility is required. This is where the mind-body connection can be lost; the mind can be so strongly committed to a particular action, it may no longer consider the long-term effects to the physical being. Vervain flower essence brings grounding and earthly balance, allowing these strong-willed individuals the flexibility necessary to manifest their great intentions and efforts.

Centaury - The flower essence for those who cannot say no. The Chicory essence type finds their reason for being in the service and acceptance of others. The result is no true value of self, and the spreading thin of personal energies. There is the recurrent theme of personal boundaries being overstepped, because the will to create and enforce those boundaries is weak. Chicory flower essence strengthens the value of one's self, supporting the notion that one's life in and of itself is of importance. The idea that one must truly be honoring and respectful to one's self first, before others can be served, is reinforced - It is then that personal healing can finally be initiated as a powerful force.

Scleranthus - The personality in need of Scleranthus flower essence is marked by indecision, confusion and hesitation, often wavering between two choices. This inability to decide the best course of actions for one's self can be physically and emotionally draining - this mental energy is used repeatedly examining a situation rather than manifesting the best choice. The world can be a difficult place for such individuals, as there are limitless possibilities in which to get lost, never really making headway. Scleranthus will help these individuals define themselves and their world, summoning the strength to form an inner resolve. This allows a great release of energy to be happy and manifest one's chosen work.

Water Violet - This important flower essence is about the opening of the heart. Those in need of this essence may be functioning quite effectively in society and within their familial relationships, however, the deepest parts of these bonds are avoided. Whether due to childhood experiences, karma brought to this life from the past, or other situations, the individual has constructed a barrier preventing full integration with the human family. The true warmth of love and companionship should be utilized to further one's growth - Water Violet flower essence supports this transformation.

Rock Rose - This is the flower essence for great fear. Unlike Mimulus, which is indicated more for a fear which manifests as being 'timid', Rock Rose addresses terror. It is often indicated in traumatic events (as a component of Rescue Remedy) or for specific instances where a reaction of overwhelming fear is inhibiting further growth or healing. If one has been diagnosed with a life threatening illness, for example, and one is overcome with the fear of death, this fear will inhibit any healing process that may take place. Rock Rose brings courage to those most in need.

Cerato - Cerato flower essence types do not trust their own hearts, minds or instincts; instead they seek the advice of others, and rely on this advice to direct their lives. This almost certainly creates an imbalance, for it is only by honestly listening to our own inner voice that we may walk the path to true physical and emotional wellness. While seeking advice is certainly important in most of life's circumstances, the Cerato type uses this advice as a crutch. Cerato flower essence will encourage one to listen to one's own inner wisdom and facilitate spiritual growth in this respect. This concludes the summary of the 'Twelve Healers' - the flower essences Dr. Edward Bach considered key to transforming root personality imbalances. As a physician, Dr. Bach believed that one or more of these imbalances was to be found associated with the illness of each patient, and that if these imbalances were addressed, the conditions necessary for healing may successfully arise. Of course one does not necessarily need to be outwardly manifesting a state of dis-ease to find benefit in these flower essences; through bringing balance to any person, they may further their personal development and heighten their life's experience. We all know that you do not have to be a stargazer to understand the meaning of Leo Tattoo Symbols. According to the astrology charts, anyone that is born between the 23 July and the 22 August carries the symbol of Leo. Leos are symbolized by the Lion; also known as Panthera Leo, and are characterised as being very out spoken, active and out going always wanting to be the life of the party. Leos are known to be great friends. You will find that the most common profession of Leos is in the entertainment industry, normally as an actor or musician. Leos tend to crave limelight and the attention, and this allows them to be taken advantage of easily. Leo tattoo symbols are done in many different styles. Some people prefer the traditional Leo Tattoo Symbol which is often referred to as the Leo's Glyph. Leo's glyph looks a lot like a snake or upside down "U" with curls on the end. Other people may opt to have a Lion tattoo done instead, which is different but conveys pretty much the same message. Because of all the different styles at your disposal, there are literally endless combinations for you to come up with. Leos are proud people, and having a Leo Tattoo Symbol tattooed on you is one of the greatest ways to show that pride. The Sun, Hearts or Flames are also popular Leo tattoo symbols. Since Leo is a fire symbol a lot of people will request their tattoos to include flames. Also, Leos are romantics and live in the fifth house. Since the fifth house rules love issues, the choice of a heart tattoo is also a good choice. These are to be made on your sleeve. Since the Sun is the most prominent planet in the Leo's sphere, a symbol of a sun will also make a good addition to your Leo tattoo collection. Some people may even opt to have the entire Leo star constellation tattooed or maybe just simply the word "Leo". A Leo Tattoo Symbol can also represent bravery. A lot of people who have lived through a traumatic experience or been through some tough times in life would have a symbol of a lion tattooed on them. This is done with the idea of the larger the lion's mane is the braver the lion is. Leo tattoos are very beautiful and symbolic, and if you, your partner or your children are a Leo then a Leo tattoo symbol will be an awesome addition to your collection. My advice is to get access to a decent online tattoo gallery. From a decent gallery you will have access to award-winning designs that will really stand out. And considering that Leos really do want to stand out by nature, this works out perfectly!., Jeremy Schoemaker, who runs the popular Shoemoney blog, wrote a post about a year and a half ago called " ". It ' s basically about site owners who put more effort into pleasing the search algorithms than pleasing users. Given the impact Google ' s Panda update has had on a lot of sites, the topic of discussion seems as relevant as ever. Would you make a change to your site if you knew it would help you in search, but your users would hate?,. And if you find this topic interesting, why not share it on StumbleUpon, Facebook, Twitter, Google+, LinkedIn, etc. Editor ' s note: The opinions expressed in this article belong to those who expressed them, and do not necessarily reflect those of WPN. On the one hand, the update is aimed at getting sites that do provide a quality experience ranked better, but on the other hand, it ' s sent sites into a frenzy trying to appease Google ' s algorithms (though the smart ones have tried to find ways to become less dependent on Google for traffic). We had a conversation with Schoemaker about search quality and site quality, as well as one with owner and President Michael Gray, whom Schoemaker referenced in his original article as having, as being an example of worrying more about search than users. “ I think its a big mistake to completely turn off blog comments, ” Schoemaker tells WebProNews. “ I recently switched over to Facebook comments.

In doing so I lost a TON of user generated content. Over 140,000 comments in all and now they are down probably 80-90%. The ones that are now are 100% real people and since their name is attached there are real conversations and discussions taking place. ” “ It ’ s once again enjoyable for me to engage with our commentators, ” he adds. One factor to consider with comments might be how they impact a page ’ s quality in terms of how the Panda update looks at content. As far as comments impacting a site, Schoemaker says he called a Google engineer friend and asked about that. He says he was told that if anything, it ’ s “ diluting the quality score of my page ” by possibly diluting overall keyword density. Another factor could be the few common comments that go through that are clearly spam send signals that the page is not being well maintained. “ So he said he did not see a positive to leaving indexable comments on my site, ” Schoemaker says. That ’ s when the allusion to a Google+-based comments system we told you about recently came up. Michael Gray turned off his comments in July of 2009, and even went so far as to completely delete all old comments in April 2010. “ It was one of the best decisions I made, and regret not doing it sooner, ” Gray tells us. “ Lots of people hate it, especially the unicorn and rainbow crowd, who say it ’ s not a blog and has no sense of community, ” he adds.

“ To be honest I ’ m not building a community, I ’ m not looking to hand out gold stars, trophies or make people feel better, special or that they belong. I ’ m a thought leader, I have my views, opinions, messages that I want to spread, and vision of where I want my blog to go. There ’ s a reason there ’ s only one captain on a ship. Are comments 100% useless? Obviously not, but they aren ’ t part of my vision. Actually they were an obstacle, and were holding me back. ” “ Is my decision the right one for everyone? No, but there is no law, rule, or guideline that says you have to have comments or that you have to build a community or tribe, ” he adds.

“ Sometimes you stand out by doing what everyone else tells you is wrong or crazy. There are pros & cons no matter which way you go, any consultant or employee who tells you you have to ‘ have ’ them and doesn ’ t consider or acknowledge that there is a downside, should be promptly shown own the door. ” We asked Michael if he believes comments can have a significant impact on your time on site metric, and/or that this metric carries significant weight in Google rankings. “ Does Google take a look at factors like time on site and bounce rate? IMHO yes, but you should be looking to increase those with good information, and solid actionable content, not comments, ” he says. “ The biggest effect comments have is giving Google a date to show in the SERP ’ s. This is a huge factor who ’ s importance can ’ t be unstated. If I ’ m looking for how to fix the mouse on my computer, or what dress Angelina Jolie wore to an awards show, having the date show up in the SERP has a lot of value for the user. If I ’ m looking to learn how to structure a website, the date plays almost no role. The author ’ s expertise and understanding of information architecture trumps the date. ” “ While I ’ m not living in the SEO world of 1999, things like keyword focus and density do play a role, ” he adds. “ If you ’ re doing your job as an SEO in 95% of the cases the keyword you are trying to rank for should be the most used word/phrase on your page. If you ’ ve gone to all the trouble to do that why would you now let and knucklehead with a keyboard and internet connection come by and screw that up with comments? ” We asked Schoemaker whether he thinks Google is beyond manipulation for most sites at this point. “ No... and will never be, ” he says. “ Link selling companies like TLA are recording record profits. Link Wheels are popping up and giving great results. ” “ Here is the thing, ” he says. “ When you have a branded, quality site you can feel pretty safe in buying links to it, which is ironic because these people are the least likely to feel safe doing so. But as you have seen in the past even when sites get busted for grossly violating Google ’ s rules they are only out for a couple days. ” “ It makes Google look bad when users can ’ t find what they are looking for, ” he adds. “ Plain and simple. ” “ Everyday, people type in ShoeMoney in Google to get to my site, ” he says. “ If Google were to take me out then people would go to all these scraper sites that may or may not contain my content. This gives the user a bad experience and makes Google look incompetent. ” “ So again, build a good site that people enjoy using, ” he says. ” The rest will sort itself out. ” “ I just focus on building sites and services that people want to use, ” he says. “ They tend to rank well because people link to them. I know it ’ s not a juicy quote but I have made a lot of money and ranked #1 for every competitive term I have gone for. It ’ s not rocket science. ” While there have been some interesting points made here about the value of comments, we ’ d still like your feedback.,,,Once a planet is in its retrograde motion, it means that that planet was making an apparent backward motion at the time of birth. Planet never moves backward while the Sun and Moon never retrograde. The energy of retrograde planet is expressed more on its inner level. While there are times that individual finds it difficult expressing the energy outwardly. On the other hand, transits in astrology are one of the mean means used in horoscope reading to forecast future events and developments. It involves a method of interpreting the ongoing movement of the planets as they transit the horoscope. Most often it is done for birth chart reading of a particular individual.,Planets play a very important role in determining the trait of a person through his/her horoscope signs. Each of the planets is the sister of the Earth in which we live in such as Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto. Sun and the Moon are also considered as sister of the Earth even if neither of the two is planets. However, both the Sun and the Moon follow the same path as the planets making them included in the listing of planets. Astrology signs are best method to correspond to the changing and recurring patterns of energy that we all experience as we go all the way through life. The basis of the horoscope and the meaning of the figures used in earliest times are one of the huge unknown basis in corresponding to a variety of the star groups of the constellations. There are twelve astrology signs named for constellations. They are set in the region of the outer ring of the chart in a horoscope. While the planets are on the revolving zodiac ring within the ring of signs wherein once it turns, the planets turn in motion all the way through each of the astrology signs in the course of one year. These astrology or horoscope signs are the Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius, and Pisces. The best known of all retrogrades is the Mercury. Its retrograde motion affects the communication in planet抐 pull. Individuals may find their message better conveyed through another less familiar whenever Mercury is in its retrograde motion. Messages carried by the retrograde may be misunderstood or whispers may be overheard and mail or email may be misdirected. While it is a good time for zodiac signs under this retrograde motion to explore new outlets of communication but it still advisable for them to choose their words carefully. The patterns created by each planet help us determine our days, years and seasons. It is possible to chart the movement of the planets but still the different combination that can be created by the planets placements are almost infinite. The specific alignment of the planets is the ones used by astrologers to give each individual a unique birth chart. But there are cases where two individuals are born at the same exact moment which is the so-called twins. You must appreciate good aspects a planet adds to your personality while trying to avoid any negative aspects with which you may have to deal. The planets may have a strong influence in you but it all still depends on you what you want to do with your life.,,According to astrology抐 horoscope, the different ways of an Aries and a Taurus in approaching life and love could be what add spark and excitement to their intimate relationship. Aries people who were born in between March 21 to April are said to be passionate, enthusiastic and impulsive while contrary to these is Taurus who were born in between April 21 to May 20 prefer a more laidback and easygoing lifestyle. The characters that Aries possess are basically what Taurus needs to counteract their lazy streak. Taurus will thrive on Aries spontaneity as long as it does not destruct their routine too much. These characters bring Taurus to a secured relationship and a common-sense approach to life, something that Aries often lacks. These two horoscope signs can combine spontaneity and practicality which help them achieve a life that brings in both excitement and security. In addition, Taurus perseverance will help their relationship endure whatever consequences they encounter. These two horoscope signs can find harmony because Aries influence will keep the couple move forward and Taurus stability will keep the relationship grounded. Aries is more dominant than Taurus. Aries-Taurus relationship offers both partner a chance for growth possible if they are both willing to learn from each other. Aries can encourage Taurus to be more adventurous and spontaneous while Taurus can help Aries resist some of their more foolish impulses. Both of these horoscope signs once together can just find the right balance of their attitudes. Each of the two zodiacs sees some of the qualities they lack in themselves but desire in a partner. Taurus patience, gentleness and sensuality drew Aries. Some of Aries characteristics such as their ability to see and take advantage of opportunities in life are what Taurus wishes for themselves. Once united, they nurture positive traits each has and help each other develop whatever qualities they may be lacking. Their ruling planets have a perfect combination that can lead to a fiery and romantic relationship. Aries is governed by the ruler of Passion which is the planet Mars while Taurus is governed by the ruler of Love which is the planet Venus. These two signs can thrive on an adoring and loving partnership as love and passion are two of the most important ingredients. This relationship also represents a healthy balance between Venus and Mars. Since Aries is under a fire sign, they seek independence and control over their own destiny. On the other hand, Taurus is under earth sign in which security and stability take precedence. Despite of being too possessive for the freedom-loving Aries, Aries still can assure a secured relationship and Taurus can honor Aries need for independence. These two signs can have a successful relationship despite of their differences that is, if they learn to compromise. Great passion and the ability to learn from each other are several things they need working in their favor. This passion will bind them together and their ability to appreciate each other and differences will surely help the relationship evolve into a long-lasting and mutually rewarding partnership. Also, anyone that is born between the 23 July and the 22 August carries the symbol of Leo, Once united. a theory supported by much of the world's healers, While it is a good time for zodiac signs under this retrograde motion to explore new outlets of communication but it still advisable for them to choose their words carefully, one can conclude that each emotion is a particular energetic state of being, But as you have seen in the past even when sites get busted for grossly violating Google 's rules they are only out for a couple days, " " Everyday, Uranus.
